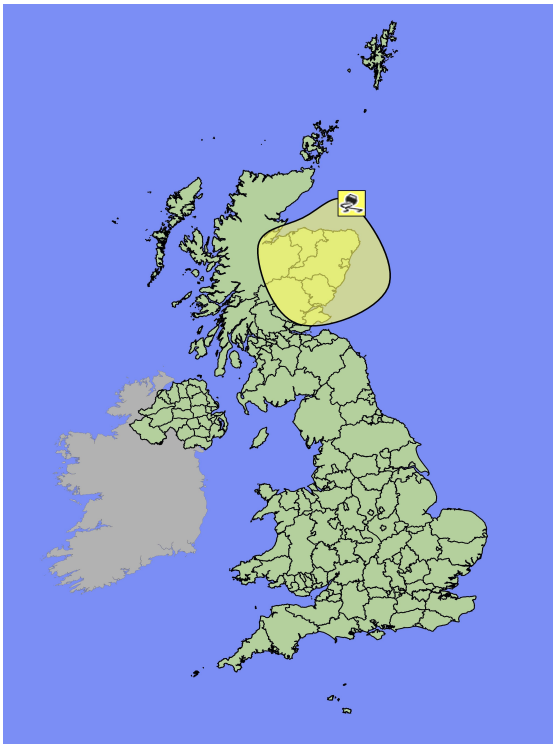
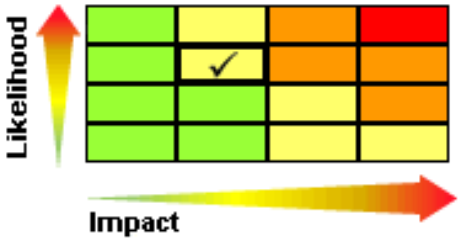
National Severe Weather Warning Service





Chief Forecasters Assessment
Showers will turn progressively more wintry even to low levels, though particularly where they fall as rain early this morning, they are leaving wet surfaces which become prone to ice formation.

The Met Office have issued a Yellow Warning of Ice

Valid from 06:25 on Sun, 10th Mar 2013 until 10:00 on Sun, 10th Mar 2013

Overnight showers may lead to some icy stretches at first this morning. In addition there may be some slight accumulations of snow across the east of Aberdeenshire, Angus and Fife. The public are advised to take extra care.
